

wise than of mine owne collection) but from the best Phisitions that haue written latest thereof: if therefore the natures of Tabacco, and the diuerse qualities it hath, be more confirmed than before, it is well, if not, it is neuer the worse, I meane it shall neuer the more nor disable nor derogate from it:
this I say, because there be so many heads as there be bodies to beare them, & so many wits, and so many iudgements will follow; some of knowledge, some of experience, some of fancie; some one way,
some another; euery man according to his humor: well, the plant hath growen, the Phisition written, and the author of this worke hath gathered, who wisheth euery one his due, the planter, the writer, and the reader.

FINIS.

ORATIONVM MARCI TVL. CICERONIS

VOLUMEN SECVNDVM,

à Ioan. Michaële Bruto emendatum.

Accesserunt breues animaduersiones, & doctissimorum hominum commentarijs, quibus ita loci permulti explicantur, vt vulgò receptælectionis vbique ratio habeatur.

Quos in his finibus auctores secuti, anpagella indicabit.

LONDINI,
Excudebat Richardus Field.
1612.

Eorum nomina quos sumus auctores secuti Ciceronis Orationibus emendandis, quæ secundo volumine continentur.

PETRVS VICTORIVS.
PAVLVS MANVTIVS.
CAROLVS SIGONIVS.
BERNARD. LAVREDANVS.
GABRIEL FAERNVS.
MARC. ANT. MVRETVS.
DIONYSIVS LAMPINVS.
HADRIANVS TVRNEBVS.
FRANCISCVS HOTOMANVS.
HENRICVS STEPHANVS.